

Claudia is a UK-trained GP. She graduated from the University of Liverpool in 2011 and completed her GP training in 2017. During her time in the UK she completed a Diploma in Tropical Medicine, gained experience working in the Emergency Department and undertook multiple rotations specific to Women's Health. She also travelled extensively throughout Europe and globally. She moved to Australia in 2019 and now calls Australia home.

Claudia enjoys all aspects of General Practice but has a keen interest in Women's Health and Sexual Health. She participated in Medical Education in the UK and since moving to Australia, Claudia has taught and mentored medical students from the University of Melbourne and Monash University and participates in medical examining for the RACGP.

In her spare time, Claudia enjoys spending time with her family and is keen to explore more of Australia.
